Abstract

Colour Visualisation System

A method for producing a colour recommendation for a structure or part of a structure to be painted which comprises selecting from a database containing images of structural archetypes stored on storage means of an archetype image that closely matches the structure to be painted, selecting a colour or colours from a database comprising colours stored on storage means and applying the colour or colours to the archetype to produce a colour scheme and displaying the structure or part of the structure with the colour applied.